

SUPPLEMENTAL COMPENSATION POLICY

The policy on supplemental compensation, contained in The University of Alabama Faculty Handbook should be reviewed prior to submission of a request for supplemental compensation. The policy requires faculty members to obtain prior agreement from officials of the University before undertaking activities that provide supplemental compensation. There are two types of supplemental compensation:

Internal supplemental compensation is any compensation paid through the University to any faculty or staff member in addition to his or her base pay.

External supplemental compensation is any salary or wages not paid through the University that a faculty or staff member receives for currently-performed, professionally-related services.